

WILL INSPECT SIDEWALK WORK

Citizens' Committee Moves
Board of Public Works to Immediate Action.

CONTRACTOR HAS HIS SAY

PROMISE OF NEW HAT BY PROTESTANTS.

"If you gentlemen come down to look at this work and you don't say that it's mighty poor, I'll buy you all a hat," said S. E. Hamer, a member of the delegation that waited on the board of public works last night to protest against the way in which the work in sidewalk extension No. 108 is being done, from their point of view.

"Aren't you taking a pretty big contract?" asked Mr. Barlow.

"Well, I know you've all got swelled heads, but at that if you don't say this work is not according to specification, I'm damned if I don't treat."

So, in order to win or lose a hat or a treat, and, incidentally, to see for themselves how well or how ill the work is being done by the Kennedy company in the big sidewalk district, the members of the board will go to the scene this forenoon at 10 o'clock. They will be met at Belmont and Ninth East streets by the delegation representing the complaining citizens, and with them will inspect the work.

Chairman McMillan, while not exactly opposed to doing the inspection work in conjunction with the citizens, said that he "believed this board is entirely competent to judge of the character of the work for itself. There is no objection to the gentlemen meeting the members, however, if they so desire."

Wait on Board.

It all came about when a delegation of eight or ten citizens from the southeastern section of the city, where the new sidewalks are being laid, walked into the board's meeting room—at least as many of them as could get in. The delegation was headed by C. A. Badger. He stated his objections, which reflected the views of all, in subdivisions, substantially as follows: That the proportion of cement to sand and gravel is not according to specification; that protection is not made according to specification; that tamping is not done according to specification.

Mr. Badger said that sidewalks laid on Ninth East street and Windsor avenue showed evidence of extremely poor work. There were heel marks and dog tracks, he said, and the only protection was the wooden horse with a lantern.

"Do you mean that a contractor should fence in every part of the work?" asked Mr. Rookledge.

"I certainly do," replied Mr. Badger. "Here is the specification."

The delegation complained more strongly about the proportion of cement that is being put into the concrete composing the sidewalk. H. S. Sheets, who said that careful watching had been kept on the mixer, had noticed that when protest had been made improvement was shown.

Mike O'Connor, superintendent for the Kennedy people, who was present, was invited to address the meeting. "There are parts of the work on Ninth East that are admittedly bad," he said at the time, did I not, Mr. Hall?"

"You did," said Mr. Hall, who is not a member of the board of public works, but who is a member of the city council. "You told me that three or four weeks ago."

Will Repair Defects.

"I also said that I intended to tear out the parts of that walk that were bad. It was laid during the storm, and we surely couldn't help it. We can't keep people off the newly laid walks if they persist in walking on them. One Sunday night I had three men down there to look out for a piece of walk we had just put down. When church was out, hundreds of people flocked onto that sidewalk, and my three men were as helpless as if they hadn't been there at all. There was mud more than ankle deep all around, and I don't much blame them."

Some Other Worries.

That is one of the trifles that worried the board of public works last night, and which are going to be looked into today. The big explosion on the intercepting sewer didn't exactly come, but the copiousness of it was fixed. Chairman McMillan has delegated a representative of the board to make a personal examination of the famous, or, perhaps, infamous piece of work, and he accepted the task with his jaws set.

This matter came up when a communication was read from City Engineer Kelsey, in which he recommended that the Campbell Building company be notified to proceed with the completion of the work under section 18 of its contract within two days. Mr. Kelsey informed the board that the stove pipe was leaking badly in many places, and that there were two one-inch pipes pouring water into it under hydraulic pressure head of seventy-two pounds. "But," said Mr. Kelsey, "if it leaks so badly in places now, no one can say what it will do when the test pressure is put on. It seems to me that the trouble has been that nobody has been doing any work out there."

Mr. Kelsey said that the machinery for the pumping station would be in shape by the middle of next week.

"I'll be investigated," grimly remarked Mr. McMillan.

Next on the list of kicks was a communication from W. W. Ritter, who said that he had let a private contract for sidewalk on East First South, between Third and Fourth streets, and the agreement was that this work was to be done according to the specifications of the city engineer; that there had been an inspector on the work, but that neither mixture nor the thickness was according to the engineer's specifications. Chief Inspector Fitzpatrick said that when he visited the job yesterday the thickness and the mixture were according to specification.

Now the whole board is going to meet on Mr. Ritter's sidewalk at 9 o'clock this morning, and then and there measure the thickness and analyze the mixture.

"Tag—you're it."

Come across with 10 cents or more, there is no limit, when this merry game is sprung on you on Salt Lake's streets today.

This is merely a tip on how to behave yourself if you are on the streets between the hours of 9 in the forenoon and 6 in the evening. It is "Tag day" for the Young Women's Christian association in this city, and the business section is going to be invaded by 200 pretty "tag girls."

"Tag day" was planned by the Y. W. C. A. leaders as the best system of raising money to enlarge the work of the association and to get a start on the building fund with which it is planned to erect a new home for the association. It has been planned to cover every street in the city, both in the business and residential sections, with tag girls.

The game is this: Two hundred young ladies, mostly members of the Y. W. C. A., will each be equipped with an official Y. W. C. A. badge, worn in plain sight, a bunch of tags and a money chest, or cash box as it is called. They tag you, that is, they pin a tag on your manly chest, and you donate into the box.

Only those of the fair sex who are officially adorned with the Y. W. C. A. badge are eligible to do the honors. Each one will carry a white box about six inches long and four inches wide, with a slot in the top and the letters "Y. W. C. A." in red on it. These boxes will receive the sinews of war, and each one is sealed so that it cannot be opened except by Y. W. C. A. officials.

Salt Lake has been divided into twenty districts for carrying out the work of "Tag day." Each district in the residential section will cover two blocks, and one block in the business section. For instance, both sides of Main street, between First and Second South streets, will constitute one district, and so forth.

Over the force of girls who will tag in each district is a prominent member of the Y. W. C. A., who will officiate as chairman. She will have complete charge of the young ladies in her district, will select and marshal her forces and take care of the collections.

Not alone will people be tagged on the streets, but stores and offices in business blocks will be invaded if no objections are offered by proprietors. The young ladies will roam up and down the streets and tag people promiscuously, and others will be stationed on corners that are thickly peopled.

Mr. E. B. Critchlow, president of the Y. W. C. A., will superintend the whole affair. She said to a Herald reporter yesterday:

"This will be a decided innovation, as it has never before been tried in Salt Lake. It has been tried in other large cities throughout the country and has met with magnificent success. The young ladies also have been cordially treated and money freely given."

"Tag day" was tried in Milwaukee on Oct. 22 and $12,000 raised. In Baltimore it netted the sum of $30,000 for the children's fresh air fund. In Philadelphia the sum of $20,000 was secured. In the city of Jamestown, Pa., with only 21 tag girls, they raised $5,000 by this means.

"The young ladies will not only tag pedestrians, but they will tag automobiles and other vehicles. We expect that it will prove to be a remarkable success, and a big sum of money raised to further our work and give us the nucleus for erecting a new building. We have now 500 members and our headquarters are in the Brooks Arcade, at Third South and State streets."

"We won't give any objection to the sum given. Each person who is tagged is expected to donate 10 cents, but they may give as high as $10.00 if they feel disposed to. Those who have been once tagged will not be approached again unless they hide their tags and want to donate more."

"We are looking forward to 'Tag day' with a good deal of pleasure and anticipation. We have perfectly arranged the girls systematically, so that they will cover the entire city, and the results will be announced later."

FLORENCE STANLEY WITH ACTORIE

"Her One Great Sin" as Portrayed by Leading Lady a Spicy Performance.

Florence Stanley has been playing the leading role in "Her One Great Sin" all season, but the rest of the members of the cast did not fathom the depths of her iniquity until yesterday afternoon, when Miss Stanley, her dog and Louis Dayton a favored member of the company, departed on the 3 o'clock Rio Grande train for Denver, taking all the available assets of the company with her. Theodore Marston, manager of "Her One Great Sin" company, and husband of Miss Stanley, whom he featured in the production, is at present in Denver, while he went on Monday ostensibly to secure booking on the Pelton & Smutzer circuit.

For the past two weeks the "Her One Great Sin" company has been playing the towns of the state. During that time the ghost of the company has not walked, in fact he has not been taken as a headlining step. After playing Farmington Thursday night, Miss Florence informed the other members of the company that Mr. Marston would arrive in Salt Lake Friday and would pay all salaries immediately on his arrival. Mr. Marston did not appear at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, when he was expected, and during the afternoon, Lester F. Mitchell, leading man of the company, became suspicious and following Miss Florence to the Rio Grande depot saw her board the train in company with Dayton just as the train pulled out. He was unable to stop her and she waved deservingly adieu from the platform as the train left the station.

After a hurried consultation with the other members of the company, Miss Ober, who is well known in Salt Lake, sought Judge Dana T. Smith and after the case had been laid before him the sheriff of Emery county was notified to intercept the escaping couple at Green River, Utah and to bring Miss Stanley back to Salt Lake. In the meantime the members of the company are anxiously awaiting news from Green River as some of them are in severe financial straits. A thorough description of Miss Stanley, Mr. Dayton and the dog was wired to the Emery county guardian of the peace and high hopes are entertained of apprehending the lady before she crosses the border of the state.

Mr. Mitchell stated last night none of the members of the company would have complained if the company had been drawn enough money at the box office to meet all salaries, but that the company was a small one, the expenses light and the business done by "Her One Great Sin" exceptionally good. The members of the company stated that Miss Stanley had at least $500 to $600 in her possession when she boarded the train.

The company was to have played Murray tonight.

"Her One Great Sin" will be forgiven if Miss Stanley can be persuaded to assume the leading role in "Come Back With the Coin."
